O BROTHER ESAUS!

Men come and go in the thronging street,
They wander the worldwide sea,
They tread the forest with eager feet,
They ream like the sea bird free,
But we, in the mirk of the clanging marts,
Drudge the dull hours away.
For our need—for their need who are near our hearts (God help us!)—we have sold the day.

The wind sings glad up the frosty sky,
The mad clouds flurry over,
The blown gull swoops high veering by
And calls to his comrade rover.
The striving trees toss free their gold
In the riot of wild November,
And we who repred with the winds of

And we who roamed with the winds of old. In our service cells remember. O Brother Essas under the sun, Who have sold for earthly lure Free heaven's hue and the sea's broad blue, God's primogeniture.

Was never a way but this—to sit
Thus, here—and to feel without
How the blown pines groan and the shrill gulls flit
And the pluming billows shout?

O Brother Esaus who yearn for the sky
And dream of the splendors lost,
Who eat the bread ye have bought thereby,
Do ye count the bitter cost?
Through the citied world our hosts bend low
Over their sordid task,
While the free winds blow and the rivers flow
And sun glad cattle bask.

But we, oh, pity us, Jacob, brother— We who have sold to you The blessing of wood and ridging flood And consecrating dew— We, in the mirk of our clanging marts, Drudge life's brief best away. For our needs—for their needs who are n

LOVED HER FRIEND.

She had whispered, "Yes, Jack, I love you," in response to his question. His kisses were still warm on her lips. Their hearts were beating in unison, though not so tumultuously as before, and now that the first rapture and thrill were over they were asking questions and making their little confessions after the manner of lovers on the threshold of an engagement.

"How many times have I been in love before? Now, Jack, do you think that is a fair question?" she asked, meeting his look with a roguish glance.

"Why, certainly it is, Dora," he replied earnestly. "You say you love me, so it doesn't really make any difference about the others. They're done for now, but I think I ought to know. Still, if there are so many of them"—

"Please stop, Jack. I won't have you saying such dreadful things, and with that look on your face, " she interrupted, playfully placing her hand over his mouth, but quickly withdrawing it when he attempted to kiss it.

"How dare you," she exclaimed "after the way you've been talking?" "Well, if you don't want me to say things why don't you answer my ques-"Must I, Jack?"

"I am afraid you must, my dear." "And you won't hate me after I tell, will you?"
"Well"—

"'That depends,' you are going to say. You needn't hesitate so long. I can read your thoughts." "Can you? That's convenient for you, I'm sure. I wish I could read yours;

then I'd know the answer to my ques "Would you really like to know?" "Why, yes, or I shouldn't have asked

"Oh, no, my boy! You don't get off quite so easily as that! I want your confession now. About how many dozen times have you been in love, pray tell?" Jack Vernon winced. He hadn't counted on this exactly.

"Come, young man, you are now on truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth!" she continued banteringly. 'Must I?" said Jack, helplessly reeating her question of a few minutes

"No, I won't say that, but she was in wealth and station I might—but, pshaw! What's the use of telling you all this? It is all over now. Her love was not for me. I have put it aside-and, besides, I have you. But why are you looking so sober, Dora? Have I confessed too much? You wanted the whole

"Well, no. Nothing should be taken for granted in this world. I'll give you your answer, but not now. I think I'd better send it to you in writing."

"My, my! How formal we are getting all at once. But, after all, I think I prefer it that way; then I can carry your note next to my heart for a mascot antil you are mine for good and all. Shan't I run over here for it tomorrow morning? I'm anxious to get it as soon as possible.

"No. I'll mail it to your office in New York."

"All right, Dora, and now just one before I go." He bent down and plant-ed a kiss on her unresisting lips. 'Thanks, dear. Now, please forget that there ever was any other girl and don't look quite so sober the next time I call. I'll be over again Wednesday evening if nothing happens. Good night, Dora. "Good night, Jack."

When Jack Vernon reached his office n Temple court the next morning, he found Dora Stevens' note awaiting him. Tearing it open, he read:

Tearing it open, he read:

BHOOKLYN, N. Y., 9:30 p. m., March 15.

DEAR JACK—The love I expressed for you an hour ago I find has turned to pity, and I am going to make you happy by sending to you the only woman you have a right to marry. After hearing your confession and knowing what I do I could never be happy with you. I know you think you are in love with me, but the tendrils of your heart are still intwined around that early love, and—and she needs you more than I do. I told you she was my schoolmate years ago. I still regard her as one of my dearest friends, and, though we have never met since we graduated, we have always kept up a correspondence. I inclose my latest letter from her, received two months ago. I did not know until tonight who the man was that she loves. I know now, and I wish you both all the joy that life in each other's society can bring you. Go to her, Jack, and make her happy, and my blessing and prayers will go with you. Not good night this time, but good by! Ever your friend.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 14.

MY DEAR DORA—No, I am not engaged yet and nover expect to be. I have had plenty of chances to confer my hand and fortune, especially the latter, upon aspiring applicants, but I have declined them all. I have never met a man I really cared for except one, and I believe he cared for me at a time. Perhaps he does yet; but, alas, he discovered that I was an heiress, and then pride (he was a young lawyer with plenty of brains and ambition, but no money) held him back. He loved memy heart told me that—but fortune hunters were fluttering around me like moths around a candle, and I suppose he was afraid if he spoke he would be classed with therest, just as though the slohemy of a woman's love could not detect the gold among the dross.

Ah, well, he is gone, and there's no use mourning for the past! I cannot help sighing, though, to think that the very money which has attracted so many society moths should drive away the only man I over loved!

There, Dora, you have my secret and know why I shall evermore a maiden be, but please don't tell. Wishing you a lover true some time, dear Dora (not being burdened with wealth, you won't have so many unworthy ones as I), and hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, with oceans of love, yours sincerely.

Edital Burton.

Dr. Junker's Escape.

Dr. Junker, the Russian explorer, who did not see a white person for years while he was studying the natives and natural history of the upper Mobaugi-Makua river, made use of an ingenious expedient to get to the coast on his way home in 1886. He could not de sound the Nile, for the Mahdists blocked the way. He could not follow the beaten road by way of Victoria Nyanza, for the Waganda and other tribes had been killing whites and if they did not murder Junker they would at least detain him as a prisoner. Arab traders would not take him in their caravans for fear they would lose the friendship of the native chiefs along the road. At last the doctor went to one of the traders with this proposal: "You cannot take me with you as a friend," he said, "but you can take me as a slave. Look at this." And Dr. Junker showed the trader an order written in Arabic and signed by a well known firm in Zanzibar, authorizing the doctor to make any arrangements he desired with the Arabs of central Africa, and the firm would honor his drafts. have written out a contract, and if you will sign it with me I shall reach the coast. It provides that when you deliver me alive at Zanaibar the sum of $1, 500 (Austrian thalers) will be paid to you by this firm. You cannot take me with you as a traveler or a friend, and you must therefore take me as a slave."

The bargain was made on this basis. In passing through the hostile tribes the white man was represented to be a slave who had been purchased from a negro tribe farther north. As a slave he pa muster even at the court of cruel King Mwanga and was allowed to pass on in peace with his supposed master.—Har-per's Round Table.

HPNDERSON, Editor Daily Advertiser, Cripple Creek, Colo. Sold

In olden times mistaken enthusiasts used to inflict upon themselves all manner of painful and horrible tortures. Men scourged them selves with whips and hot irons, and rubbed vinegar into the wounds and wore haircloth next to their skin day and night. Nowadays such cruel torture is discountenanced. Nevertheless, men and women go on men and women go on torturing themselves, only in a different and more serious manner than of old. They neglect their health, and neglected health means plysical torture of the and neglected health means physical torture of the worst description. It means slow starvation. Because a man forces food into a weak and impaired stomach, it does not follow that he feeds his body. The life-giving elements of the food taken into an impaired stomach are not assimilated into the blood. Instead, the impurities of the sluggish liver and bowels are taken up and carried to all parts of the body. The consequence is that the body is not only starved but poisoned. The immediate result is physical suffering from which the old time zealot would have drawn back in horror. The final result is disease and death. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a scientific remedy that acts according to natural laws. It is not a violent spur to nature or a mere artificial appetiser. It gently, but surely and permanently, promotes the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It creates appetite, makes the assimilation of the food perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It builds up firm, muscular flesh. It cures nervous exhaustion, debility, sleeplessness and all the evils that follow in their train. Found at all medicine stores. Accept no substitute that may be represented as "just as good."
